WOMEN COWARDS, SAYS DOROTHY DIX

Writer Tells Suffragists They Must Fight More.

MILITANT SPIRIT RAMPANT

Another Demonstration in Pennsylvania Avenue Draws Crowds. Henry Wilbur Encourages Movement—Busy Rounding Up Senators and Representatives.

TAFT'S REPLY TO SUFFRAGISTS.

My Dear Mrs. Potter: I beg to acknowledge your favor of April 13. I unite with you in regretting the incident occurring during my address to which your letter refers. I regret it, not because of any personal feeling, for I have none on the subject at all, but only because much more significance has been given to it than it deserves and because it may be used in an unfair way to embarrass the leaders of your movement. I thank the association for the kindly and cordial tone of the resolutions submitted, and hope that the future of Thursday night's meeting, which you describe as one giving your association much sorrow, may soon be entirely forgotten. Sincerely yours, WILLIAM H. TAFT.

"The real reason that women can't vote is because they are cowards. They lack the courage of their desires, the bravery to demand their just rights, and the grit to stand up and fight until they get them."

This is the appeal of Dorothy Dix for something more than conservative waiting for "votes for women" at the suffrage convention last night. She was applauded wildly because at least half of the big meeting of suffragists believe they have not been militant enough. The same spirit was raised by a half dozen women, who braved a biting wind and held another open-air demonstration in Pennsylvania avenue, near Seventh street, in the late afternoon, from a big red automobile.

Vying with English Women.

Many of the officers of the organization do not believe in outdoor meetings, but Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch and her officers are going to keep right on vying with their English sisters in stirring up the "man in the street." Miss Dix's talk to the suffragists, or suffragettes, as some of them defiantly call themselves, was a funny arraignment of the way women go about things they want. She quoted her dusky cook at home to hear out her remarks in a way that convulsed the convention with laughter and evoked tumultuous applause. "The great majority of women are suffragists at heart," she declared. "But the club women of the country are not a bit flattered at being classed by the law with idiots, criminals, and insane. The mothers of the country shed tears over the fact that while they are good enough to have children, the law does not consider them equal to their husbands.

"Take it from me," she went on, "that every woman wants the right to vote, and deep down in her soul is as mad as a wet hen because she can't, and the only reason she can't is because she is deathly afraid that somebody will laugh at her, or accuse her of being strong minded, which Heaven knows is only too often a baseless accusation."

Message to Convention.

Henry Wilbur gave a message to the convention last night from the Friends Equal Rights Association, and Alice Duane Miller, Harriet E. Green, and Juliet Stuart Poinsett made brief addresses. Max Eastman gave the gathering the endorsement of the Voters' League for Women Suffrage of New York City.

He said that votes for women in Manhattan would strengthen the forces of Tammany for a time, but that the better class of women in New York would come to the polls against it.

The outdoor meeting was held at 5 o'clock. A wind was sweeping down the Avenue with a chill in it that made people in new spring suits huddle more than the Saturday afternoon crowds usually do. But when the automobile bearing the blazing "votes for women" banner drew up to the curbing at the busy Seventh street corner a crowd collected immediately.

With their skirts swirling and their words and hands blowing across the street, the plucky women started talking.

Men in Audience.

The audience was mostly men, and, though there were several facetious ones on hand with the usual supply of week-end refreshments, the suffragists were given close attention and no ridicule.

Miss Ray Costello, the pretty English suffragette, started the crowd laughing when she said the only thing a woman has any right to turn her back to are the wind and a stone wall.

Missionary Work Begun.

The suffragists did missionary work with a vengeance yesterday morning and afternoon. They started at 9 o'clock in the morning in a personal campaign among Senators and Representatives by getting Senator Cullom out of bed at his Massachusetts avenue home and "liling him up" for the cause. Many other members of both Houses were caught during the day, either by visits to their houses or buttonholing them at the Capitol.

PROGRAMME FOR TO-DAY

AFTERNOON—3 O'CLOCK.
Anna Howard Shaw, presiding.
Prayer, Rabbi Abram Simon.
Address, "An element of character," Laura Clay.
Address, Harriet May Wills.
Address, Beatrice Forbes Robertson.
Address, Ella Newell.
Address, "What Women Want," Charlotte Perkins Gilman.

EVENING—8 O'CLOCK.

Informal reception for delegates and visitors to the convention in the parlors of the Hotel Arlington.

Rounding Up Solons.

Delegates who were not busy rounding up Senators and Representatives were busy rounding up automobiles for the descent on the Capitol Tuesday morning. Others who were not engaged in the pursuit of either automobiles or members of their congress delegations were occupied with the sessions of the College Equal Suffrage League in another part of the hotel. Dr. M. Carey Thomas, president of the league and of Bryn Mawr, presided over these sessions and over the rather elaborate luncheon which interrupted them.

Almost as welcome as the President's letter, read at the morning session, was one from Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, received early in the afternoon. It announced Mrs. Belmont's intention of contributing to the work of the association at the rate of $600 a month until the convention of 1911, specifying that the money was to be used to pay the rental of official headquarters at 56 Fifth avenue, New York, and to continue the work of the national press bureau.

Mrs. Belmont undertakes to continue this monthly contribution to the press bureau as long as Mrs. Ida Husted Harper remains in charge of it. Should she not remain in charge, Mrs. Belmont will reduce her contribution by the sum of $123.33 per month, this being the amount paid to Mrs. Harper for her work. She further stipulates that as the lease of the floor on which national headquarters is located is in her name she shall be allowed to pay the rent directly to the lessors and deduct it from her contribution of $600 monthly before sending it to the national treasurer.

Cheers for Letter.

The letter was greeted enthusiastically, but for the moment Mrs. Belmont's offer was tabled, inasmuch as the limitations placed on the use of the money will have to be acted upon by the new general officers and board, which will not be elected until to-morrow.

Meanwhile Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, treasurer of the association, put in an hour of witty wheedling, during which she extracted from the delegates pledges of upward of $5,000 for the work during the coming year, the largest individual contribution being one of $500 from Miss Emily Howland, of Sherwood, N. Y.

CADET WILSON DIES

Six Months Since He Was Injured in Football Game.

BODY TAKEN TO COVINGTON

Father, Sister, and Two Brothers of Young Quarter Back of Naval Academy Attend Funeral Services at Annapolis and Accompany Body to Kentucky for Burial.

Annapolis, Md., April 16.—Midshipman Earl D. Wilson, the Naval Academy quarter back, who was injured in the Navy-Villanova football game six months ago to-day, died in the Naval Hospital at 5:30 o'clock this morning.

Gathered about the bedside of the dying cadet were the four members of his family, some member of which has been at Annapolis ever since the accident that sent the little quarter back to the sick bed a helpless wreck, paralyzed from his neck downward.

Body Taken to Covington.

After funeral services this afternoon in the Academy chapel, conducted by Chaplain Clark, the body was taken to Covington, where it will be buried. Mrs. D. Wilson, his sister, Mrs. Galvin, and two brothers, another service will be held at the Covington residence, and interment will be in the family plot at Independence, Ky., Monday.

When Wilson went into the football game with Villanova he was accounted one of the best quarter backs on his squad, and sure to make the team for the big West Point game.

Injured in Flying Tackle.

He was injured in making a "flying tackle" in an attempt to prevent the Navy's goal line from being crossed. Wilson missed his man and was thrown to the ground, striking on his neck with terrific force. Medical aid was immediately given, but Wilson did not recover consciousness until taken from the field.

Another player was put in and Wilson was carried to the Naval Hospital. He did not rally, and late that night word was sent out that his spine was fractured and he was paralyzed.

The body was conveyed to the railway station by the full brigade of midshipmen and a number of officers, headed by the Academy Band. Pallbearers were classmates of young Wilson, as follows: Pat Buchanan, of Texas, the midshipman's roommate; Sherman H. Mason, of Rhode Island; John W. McClaren, of Ohio; Vincent P. Erwin, of Kansas; Louis W. Comstock, of Ohio; Conrad Ridgely, of Georgia, and Harry W. Hill, of California.

Would Tax All Property.

Representative Nye introduced in the House yesterday a bill providing that hereafter, for the purposes of assessment and valuation of personal property in the District, all personal property, whether tangible or intangible, except that now specifically exempt by law, shall be included in such assessment and valuation.

WESTON GETS RECEPTION.

Coast-to-coast Pedestrian Lectures in Village.

Dunkirk, N. Y., April 16.—Edward Payson Weston arrived in Fredonia at 7 o'clock this evening from Erie, Pa., forty-eight miles west, a distance which he covered in nineteen hours, including five hours' rest in Westfield.

A reception was given him by the village at the opera house, where a formal printed invitation was given him to be the guest of honor at the "old home week" in Fredonia in July. He was also presented with a purse containing a good sum of money. He gave a talk at the opera house concerning his long transcontinental walk.

He will remain in Fredonia over Sunday, and will give a talk at the Masonic Temple in Dunkirk Sunday afternoon. He will resume his trip early Monday morning from Fredonia. He is in good condition.

WILSON FUNERAL TO-MORROW

Prominent Attorney Will Be Buried at Oak Hill Cemetery.

Two Brothers, Three Sons, and a Brother-in-law to Be Pallbearers at Obsequies.

Funeral services for Jesse H. Wilson, 31, member of the District bar, who died at 4:40 p.m. at the Naval Hospital Friday afternoon, following an operation performed four days before, will be held at 3:30 o'clock to-morrow afternoon from the Dumbarton Avenue M. E. Church.

The pallbearers will be Emory M. Wilson and Allen D. Wilson, brothers of the deceased; H. M. Woodward, a brother-in-law, and three sons—Jesse H. Wilson, Jr., Thomas Wilson, and Ralph O. Wilson. Interment will be at Oak Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Wilson was born in this city in 1855. He was a graduate of the Columbian University (now George Washington University) of the class of 1874, academic department, and of the university's law school two years later. From the time he was admitted to the District bar he occupied an enviable position among his colleagues.

He enjoyed the reputation of one of the foremost civil lawyers in the District, and was identified for years with the progress of the city. For ten years he was a member of the board of education. He was also vice president of the bar association, and for a time was president of the Columbian University Alumni Association. Later he was president of the George Washington Alumni Association.

Address on Mosquitoes.

Addressing the 47th meeting of the Biological Society of Washington at the George Washington University last night, Mr. John B. Smith gave an outline of the mosquito campaign in New Jersey, where these voracious insects, known as the "salt marsh" mosquito or "striped stocking mosquito," are a pest.

BOY MURDERER TO DIE.

Gov. Hughes Refuses to Commute Sentence of Earl Hill.

Auburn, N. Y., April 16.—Earl D. Hill, of Oneonta, one of the youngest murderers ever confined in Auburn prison, being only nineteen years old, was informed this afternoon that Gov. Hughes had declined to grant a commutation to life imprisonment, and he was instructed to be ready for execution on Monday morning. His mother, Mrs. Eva Hill, a sister, and a young brother took an affecting farewell.

On August 26, 1908, Hill, with David Bort, another boy, and a farmer, Eldridge Davis, with bullets at West Bainbridge in a wild west escapade.

BLOW TO VARDAMAN.

Accountant's Report Says He Diverted Money.

Jackson, Miss., April 16.—The report of the expert accountant, Charles J. Moore, which was submitted to the senate and house to-day, says former Gov. Vardaman spent $721 of the State's money for which there is no voucher or record except that it was drawn.

The report also says that Gov. Vardaman paid some of his personal accounts out of this fund, that he drew expense money out of the executive contingent fund to attend meetings of the various boards of trustees of which he was an ex-officio member, then drew his mileage and per diem allowances from the institutions for attending the meetings.

The report was signed by every member of the joint committee, among whom were some of Vardaman's warm personal friends and supporters.

Virginia Trainmen Raised.
